What Has to Be the Dumbest Avenger Hunt Item Ever

Theresa Thompson, of Edmonton, Alberta, returned from a weekend away to find that all the grass had disappeared from her front lawn. She found no note or clues, but the Edmonton Journal reports that neighbors remembered seeing a white truck parked outside her house. Thompson says she believes the lawn theft may have been the fault of landscapers with the wrong idea of grass. (EXPRESS)

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

Officials Probe Possible Gap in Palin's Emails

Alaska officials are investigating an apparent gap in the release last week of more than 24,199 pages of emails sent to and from Alaska governor Sarah Palin during her first 21 months in office. The emails released covered the period from April 4, 2006, until September 2008. However, there are very few emails from her first—and very busy—month in office. (AP)

President Woos Hispanic Voters

In a symbolic visit, Obama makes his case in Puerto Rico

San Juan, Puerto Rico

Wooing Hispanic voters back home, President Obama kept his campaign pledge to become the first president since John F. Kennedy to make an official visit to this recession-battered U.S. territory. "The aspirations and the struggles on this island mirror those across America," Obama declared Tuesday.

On a sweltering day, thousands crowded the main roads and waved flags as Obama's motorcade roared by. A huge banner filled eight stories of a building, featuring the images of Kennedy and Obama. "We are proud to be part of history," it said.

Puerto Ricans are an important component of the fast-growing Hispanic population in the U.S., now totaling 50 million, that Obama wants to mobilize in his re-election campaign. Even though he spent mere hours on the island, the visit was designed to lift the president's

Reaching Out

Residents of Puerto Rico are U.S. citizens but cannot vote in presidential general elections—only in primaries—one of many factors that give rise to a sense of second-class citizenship among some there. Reaching out to Puerto Ricans is part of Obama's broader effort to court Hispanics. (AP) visibility and create goodwill in a territory known as a vacation destination but otherwise something of an afterthought in America.

Obama sought to ensure his Puerto Rican listeners they were not forgotten by his administration. In remarks at an arrival event at the airport in San Juan, Obama quickly turned to the decades-old debate about the island's status, which has some pushing for statehood or even independence. The president reaffirmed his support for a referendum in which island voters would resolve the matter for themselves, eliciting cheers when he said: "When the people of Puerto Rico make a clear decision, my administration will stand by you."

National exit polls showed that 67 percent of Latinos voted for Obama in 2008, but some have grown disillusioned with the president.

The words could resonate not just here but with the millions of Puerto Rican voters on the mainland, including more than 800,000 in politically important Florida. Democrats see the Puerto Ricans in Florida as a potential counterbalance to the larger, traditionally Republican Cuban-American community in a state Obama needs to win a second term. (AP)

Ethanol Credit Survives

Senate refuses to cut $5M annual subsidy, backs continuing aid

Washington

The Senate refused to kill a $5-billion annual subsidy for ethanol on Tuesday, backing continued government aid for a Farm Belt-based industry over deficit reduction in an era of record red ink.

The 40-59 vote, far short of the 60 needed to advance the measure, reflected regional and partisan differences, a split among Republicans — and anything but the final word on the issue.

"We continue to spend money that we don't have on things that we don't need," said Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., a prominent deficit hawk who led the effort to eliminate the subsidy immediately.

Supporters of continued federal spending for ethanol argued it is a leading source of alternative fuel and is needed to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

"With conflicts in the Middle East and crude oil priced at more

Biden Confident on Deficit Cuts

Vice President Joe Biden said Tuesday he's confident budget talks he's leading will produce an agreement on cutting the deficit "well beyond" $1 trillion over the next decade or so. "It ain't over till it's over, but I'm convinced we can come up with an agreement that gets the debt limit passed and makes some real serious down payment on the commitment for 4 trillion bucks over the next 10 or 12 years," Biden said. (AP) than $100 a barrel, we should be on the same side. Why would anyone prefer less domestic energy production?" Sen. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, said on Monday, when the measure was debated at length.

Grassley's state leads the nation both in harvesting corn and in blending it into alternative fuel. Other leading ethanol-producing states are Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota, South Dakota and Indiana, and all senators from them opposed an end to the subsidy, regardless of political party.

Ethanol is blended with gasoline, and subsidized at 45 cents a gallon, with an additional 10 cents for small producers. These tax breaks long have been supported as a way to reduce oil imports by politicians in both parties, emphatically so for many who campaign across Iowa every four years in the state's kickoff presidential caucuses.

But a new emphasis on deficit reduction, particularly among Republicans aligned with tea party activists, has contributed to a shift in the political landscape.

As a result, with the current subsidy scheduled to expire at the end of the year, Grassley and other farm state lawmakers support alternative legislation to reduce the tax break without eliminating it for several more years. DAVID ESPO (AP)

Ariz. Fire Could Be Biggest Yet

Luna, N.M.

An enormous wildfire in eastern Arizona is poised to become the largest in state history, as firefighters tried Tuesday to keep the blaze from crossing into New Mexico and devouring a small mountain town.

Fires also grew elsewhere in New Mexico and at the state's border with Colorado, where flames forced the closure of a busy interstate highway.

In Luna, N.M., evacuation plans are in place for the roughly 200 residents. Crews have been working to protect the town for days, hacking down brush, using chain saws to cut trees and setting small fires to burn anything that the approach-

FDA Cracks Down On Sunscreens

If protection is under SPF 15, lotions must clearly state warning

Washington

Help is on the way to consumers confused by the jumble of sun protection numbers and other claims on sunscreens.

Under new rules published Tuesday, sunscreens will have to prove they filter out both ultraviolet B rays and ultraviolet A rays to claim they protect against skin cancer.

Starting next summer, if they don't protect against both, or if the sun protection factor is below 15, then they have to carry a warning: "This product has been shown only to help prevent sunburn, not skin cancer or early skin aging."

The guidelines, which spent more than 30 years in bureaucratic limbo, are designed to enhance the effectiveness of sunscreens and make them easier to use.

The key takeaway for consumers: Look for a sun protection factor, or SPF, of 15 and above that also

Sun Protection

The FDA has established new rules for sunscreens.

- ▶ The FDA will prohibit sunscreen marketing claims such as "water-proof" and "sweat-proof," which the agency said "are exaggerations of performance."
- ▶ The FDA proposes capping the highest SPF value at 50, unless companies can provide results that support a higher number.
- ▶ The FDA says manufacturers must phase out a four-star system currently used by some companies to rate UVA protection, because it is too confusing. (AP) says "broad spectrum." That's the new buzzword from the Food and Drug Administration to describe a product that blocks both types of damaging rays.

The new regulations require that sunscreens be tested for the ability to block the more dangerous ultraviolet A rays, which pose the greatest risk of skin cancer and premature aging. (AP)

Protests Grip Yemen Once More

Cries to oust Saleh renew despite his continued absence

San'a, Yemen

Hundreds of thousands of Yemenis demonstrated in nearly every major city of the country on Tuesday, demanding trial for the family and close aides of the ailing president.

They were the largest protests since President Ali Abdullah Saleh went to Saudi Arabia for medical treatment. Yemen remains locked in a power struggle between the president's allies and tribesmen seeking an end to Saleh's nearly 33-year rule.

In Washington, the State Department's counterterror coordinator said the U.S. is worried that the ongoing unrest in Yemen could fuel connections between al-Qaeda-linked militants there and al-Shabab insurgents in Somalia.

The CIA is expected to begin operating armed drone aircraft over Yemen, expanding the hunt for al-Qaeda operatives in a country where counter-terrorism efforts have been disrupted by political chaos, U.S. officials said. The plan to move CIA-operated Predator and other unmanned aircraft into the region reflects a decision by President Obama that the al-Qaeda threat in Yemen has grown so serious that patrols by U.S. military drones are not enough. The effort also marks a major escalation of the clandestine U.S. war in Yemen, and a substantial expansion of the CIA's drone war. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

NATO Ups Efforts in Libya With Airstrikes, Leaflets

Tripoli, Libya

NATO resumed its airstrikes on the Libyan capital of Tripoli late Tuesday, blasting at least two targets just before midnight.

East of the capital, alliance aircraft have begun dropping leaflets warning government troops to abandon their posts outside Zlitan, which lies just west of the rebel-held port city of Misrata.

Rebel forces have been advancing along the Mediterranean coast toward Zlitan but say they have been instructed by NATO to withdraw ahead of expected bombing runs.

Meanwhile ...

House Speaker John Boehner urged President Obama on Tuesday to explain the legal grounds for the continued U.S. military involvement in Libya and set a Friday deadline for Obama's response. The Ohio Republican said in a letter to the White House that the administration will violate the 1973 War Powers Act this weekend, as Obama did not seek congressional consent for the Libyan operation within 60 days of the March 19 U.S. airstrikes against Moammar Gadhafi's forces. (AP)

The 3-by-5-inch leaflets intended for forces loyal to Gadhafi carry the NATO symbol and a picture of an Apache attack helicopter and burning tanks on one side. Green Arabic writing warns: "There's no place to hide. It's not too late to stop fighting. If you continue to threaten civilians, you will face destruction." The message on the reverse urges soldiers to "stop and stay away from fighting now."

Syrian tanks and troops pushed into more villages Tuesday, trying to snuff out any chance that the uprising against President Bashar Assad could gain a base for a wider armed rebellion.

Trial Set for Ex-Tunisian Leader

Tunisia, Tunisia

Tunisia's deposed president will be tried in absentia next week on charges of embezzlement and drug trafficking, an official said Tuesday.

The June 20 trial — the first of its kind for a range of charges — will be open to the public, said Justice Ministry spokesman Kadhém Zine El Abidine Ben Ali. Zine El Abidine Ben Ali could face between five and 20 years in prison if convicted.

Ben Ali ruled Tunisia for more than two decades until a month-long popular uprising forced him to flee to Saudi Arabia on Jan. 14. There are 93 counts pending

Backstory

Zine El Abidine Ben Ali ruled Tunisia with an iron hand for 23 years. Since his Jan. 14 departure, there has been an explosion of political activity, with elections to choose an assembly to write a new constitution set for October. The uprising inspired pro-reform movements in the region, including in Egypt, which overthrew its ruler a month after Tunisia did and has charged ex-president Hosni Mubarak and his family with corruption and murder. against Ben Ali, including plotting against the security of the state, murder, abuse of power, embezzlement, money laundering and drug trafficking.

Tunisia's requests to Saudi Arabia for his extradition remain unanswered, said Prime Minister Beji Caid Essebsi in an interview late Monday with the Arabic Al-Jazeera news channel, on which he announced the new trial date.

Military tribunals will handle 27 of the counts, including homicide, which would carry the death penalty, said the ministry spokesman, adding that an announcement about the military tribunal will be made next week. (AP)

Tea Party Surprise

Bachmann's fast rise in the spotlight continues with strong debate showing

Washington

Rep. Michele Bachmann's quick rise from state lawmaker to unofficial tea party ambassador in Washington, her brazen style has put Republican leaders on edge and appealed to those in the GOP searching for a fresh, unfettered voice. She relishes the spotlight and seldom cedes ground.

Bachmann, of Minnesota, was part of a surprising success story of today's Republican presidential race in New Hampshire. With her passionate critique of President Obama and an energetic embrace of such conservative positions as opposing an increase in the debt ceiling and repealing the health-care overhaul, Bachmann, 55, garnered cheers and applause from supporters and approving write-ups from journalists for her performance.

Her unpredictable edge was also on display during the debate when, out of the blue, she announced that she had filed papers to be an official candidate for the Republican nomination.

"I do what I say and I say what I

A Rising Star

Michele Bachmann volunteered in college on Democrat Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign and took her maiden trip to Washington to revel in his inauguration. As a young government lawyer, Bachmann helped chase tax dodgers for the Internal Revenue Service, which she says gave her a deeper understanding of a tax code she came to regard as flawed. Still, she needed a couple of tries to make her mark in politics. In 1999, Bachmann failed to win a local school board seat but toppled an incumbent Republican on her way to a state Senate win in 2000. She won an open seat in Congress six years later and vaulted to congressional prominence as the tea party did. (AP/TWP)

mean, and I don't change what I do based on a political wind or desire to necessarily move up the next ladder," Bachmann told The Associated Press this spring in an interview in which she stressed her eagerness to "take on not only the opposing party but my own party as well to do what I think is right."

She is likely to carry some buzz along with her in coming weeks as she begins campaigning for votes in such early states as Iowa, New Hampshire and South Carolina. But she is also certain to face the more difficult question of what she sees as her path to victory.

Bachmann's strong showing also could affect former Alaska governor Sarah Palin's decision about whether to run for president. When asked about Palin at her post-debate party Monday, Bachmann offered nothing but praise for her.

"I think she did a really good job last night. I think she's a bright member of our caucus; it's one of the reasons why I appointed her to the Intelligence Committee."

— HOUSE SPEAKER JOHN BOEHNER, R-OHIO, SPEAKING TUESDAY IN PRAISE OF MINNESOTA REP. MICHELE BACHMANN'S PERFORMANCE IN THE GOP PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE ON MONDAY NIGHT.

Although Bachmann is hugely popular among tea party activists (and is the founder and chairwoman of the House Tea Party Caucus), she is viewed with some suspicion by leaders within her own party in Washington and elsewhere.

In just her third term in the House of Representatives, Bachmann has never held a leadership role within the Republican caucus. She also has committed a few gaffes in testing the waters for a presidential campaign. For example, in Concord, N.H., she said the first shots of the Revolutionary War were shot there, but they were actually fired in Concord, Mass.

But while some see her as a novelty candidate, she's also regarded as a skilled, resilient politician.

"I know people like to pick at her," said Dan Nygaard, a local GOP official during Bachmann's early days in politics. "But you can never underestimate her."

Others, such as Sean Nienow, who ran Bachmann's district office for a year before a split he called mutual, are reserving judgment.

"There's no question she's very conservative ideologically," said Nienow, now a state senator. "Can she win? If she were elected, how would she lead? These are questions that have yet to be answered." (AP/ THE WASHINGTON POST)

VRE's security campaign was funded through a Department of Homeland Security grant and includes a series of posters, book-marks and window decals that remind commuters to report any suspicious behaviors or packages they see while traveling, VTA officials said. The campaign began in fall 2010 and is still used today on trains and at VRE stations.

Final D.C. Budget Passes

12 spending plan
approved after heated debate over Medicaid

Washington

District's $10.8 billion budget passed, after the D.C. Council voted a second and final time Tuesday afternoon to approve its fiscal 2012 spending plan.

However, several provisions remain contingent on new revenues expected to be certified later this month.

Next week, Chief Financial Official Natwar M. Gandhi is expected to announce an upgrade in anticipated revenues for the coming fiscal year, which begins on Oct. 1.

The council has chosen to designate in advance how that money will be spent.

In May, the Council voted to use the first $20 million to free up funds for capital projects, then to save 50 percent of any additional dollars to increase city reserves.
On Tuesday, its members argued for more than three hours largely about how to spend any remaining dollars.

In an unexpectedly heated debate, the council split over whether to include atop that list $32 million in additional funds for the city's Medicaid providers. Mayor Vincent C. Gray asked the council to make that money a top priority for future revenue, saying that low reimbursement rates have led one managed care organization to threaten to end its contract with the city. Some council members argued that the concerns were overstated, but their attempt to remove the infusion failed narrowly.

A proposal to replace a previously approved tax on non-District municipal bonds with a new income tax bracket — floated Monday by Mary Cheh, D-Ward 3 — was not offered for a vote. Rather, Cheh introduced an amendment
that would have placed the elimination of the bond tax as a top priority for the anticipated revenue.
It failed, 7-6. MIKE DEBONIS

Building Museum Set to Charge Admission Fees

Washington

The National Building Museum
in Washington has decided to begin charging an admission fee
for the first time since it opened in 1985 due to the effect of the recession.

The private, nonprofit museum announced Tuesday it will begin charging $8 for adults, and $5 for youth, students with IDs and seniors on June 27.

Executive Director Chase Rynd
says the recession has been devastating for arts and culture groups and for the building industry that supports the museum. He says non-profit groups that wait too long to adjust to new economic realities won't survive.

Many of Washington's other private museums also charge admission fees. (AP)

CUA Reverts to Single-Sex Dorms

Washington

The president of the Catholic University of America has decided to use a "slightly old-fashioned remedy" to curtail the binge-drinking and casual hook-up habits of students: Get rid of the coed dorms.

"I know it's countercultural," wrote President John Garvey in a Wall Street Journal op-ed Monday.

Starting with the incoming class of freshmen this fall, the university will place women in all-female halls and men in all-male halls. The next school year, sophomore halls will follow suit. Then upper-classmen halls.

Only a handful of the university's 17 dorms are single-sex, Garvey said, so it will take a few years to "complete the transformation."

Most colleges began housing men and women under the same roof generations ago, and today more than 90 percent of college

CUA says that it will take a few years to institute single-sex dorms on campus.

housing is coed, according to a 2008 study about coed housing.

Administrators have also loosened rules on overnight guests of the opposite sex, and a few schools now allow men and women to live in the same room or apartment as part of "gender-neutral housing" programs.

Starting this fall, George Washington University will allow students to share a dorm room with anyone they want, regardless of gender.

Tysons Corner, Va.

If you're a fan of Kit, Addy or Josefin, you probably squealed with delight when you found out an American Girl store was opening at Tysons Corner. And you're not alone. Several thousand girls and their parents are expected to line up June 18 to surround themselves with dolls, clothes, books and the signature red-and-pink celebration of girlhood.

at the grand opening. "I have all the history books. I've read them all," said Hailey, who also has five of the dolls at home.

American Girl has at least six books for each of its seven historical dolls, with clothes and accessories tied to the stories. There's also a series of non-historical dolls — with every combination of eye, hair and skin color — and a baby doll for little girls and many outfits girls can wear to coordinate with their dolls.

The books, dolls and clothes used to be sold only through the American Girl catalogue beginning in 1986, but the company opened its first American Girl Place 13 years ago in Chicago. The store at Tysons Corner is the 10th. (AP)

Boston Bruins left their home for the final time Monday night for a jubilant line, waving and clapping back at the adoring Garden crowd. Tim Thomas returned for the last loop as the first star in Game 6 of the Stanley Cup finals, emphatically waving his stick over his head.

With three blowout victories at home in the Stanley Cup finals, the Bruins picked a wonderful way to end the season for the last time this season. When they return from Vancouver in two days, they might even win the Cup with them. Hours before the Boston party, goalie Roberto Luongo ended up being out of his crease than even

Canucks Lose Raymond

Canucks forward Mason Raymond will miss Game 7 of the Stanley Cup finals and could still be out to start next season with a fractured vertebrae after being checked into the boards. Raymond sustained a "vertebrae compression fracture" early in Game 6 Monday night, and his back injury needs three to four months to heal, the team said Tuesday. He was hurt 20 seconds into the game when defenseman Johnny Boychuk hit him during Boston's 5-2 win over Vancouver. The deciding game will be Wednesday night in Vancouver. Raymond has struggled on Vancouver's second line in the postseason, managing just two goals and six assists. (AP) the roaming Thomas likes to go. All the way to the bench. Again.

But Vancouver's inconsistent goalie didn't plan to dwell on his latest journey to a loss too long. He was already looking forward to the cross-continent trip back home.

"I've got to believe in myself, right?" Luongo said after the Bruins forced a seventh game with a 5-2 win over the Canucks. "That's a big component of bouncing back and playing a good game. So, we're going to put what happened tonight behind us as soon as possible and get ready for obviously what is going to be a dream as far as playing in Game 7 of the Stanley Cup finals."

He has reason for optimism. Luongo has been sharp at home in the finals with two 1-0 shutouts and a 3-2 win in overtime. In Boston, he's been outscored 15-1 while in net.

For the sixth time in 10 seasons, the finals have been stretched to the limit. The home team hasn't lost in this series, with Vancouver winning three one-goal games, and Boston posting three blowout victories.

But the Bruins are riding a wave of momentum toward their first title since 1972 with three wins in four games.

"Not too many people counted on us being at this point right now," said Thomas, who has allowed just eight goals in six finals games. "It's a great feeling. We battled hard tonight. We came to play, and it's coming down to one game. This is what we dream of: When you're little kids playing street hockey, you know, you're in Game 7." (AP)

Graeme McDowell practices at Congressional on Monday. He'll be looking to repeat as the U.S. Open champion this weekend.

Caught in Success' Trap

McDowell struggles to regain form after winning 2010 Open

Golf

Even an affable, easygoing guy like Graeme McDowell can succumb to the burden that comes with being a first-time U.S. Open champion.

The pride of Portrush, Northern Ireland, basked in a special 2010 that included the Father's Day win at Pebble Beach, three other tournament wins and the Ryder Cup. Quite the talker, he's happily relived it all many times in his mind.

Now, after a shaky start to 2011, he's ready to move on. "You know, it's bizarre," McDowell said Tuesday as he prepares to defend his title at Congressional Country Club, "because, if anything, I feel like the glare is off me this week. I feel like

"I'm going out there with the only goal of winning the golf tournament. That's probably a little bit unrealistic."

— GRAEME MCDOWELL, WHO SAID HE'S PUTTING A RENEWED FOCUS ON CONSISTENTLY FINISHING IN THE TOP 10 OF EACH GOLF TOURNAMENT AFTER SHOOTING TOO HIGH BEFORE.

I've done it. The last three or four months have been difficult.

"I've spent the last just under 12 months looking back at Pebble. I spent the last six months reflecting on 2010. And, I mean, somehow having arrived here this week, I feel like I've done it now. My U.S. Open trophy is back here with the USGA. I've handed it back, and I'm ready to sort of get on with the rest of my career."

It's not as if McDowell has been a walking disaster on the course. In fact, it would have been asking him a lot to carry his momentum into the new calendar year without some sort of letup. But he's missed the cut in four of his last eight tournaments, lost a one-shot lead at The Players Championship by closing with 79 and shot a third-round 81 at the Wales Open this month.

When asked whether he would have done anything differently during a whirlwind 12 months as the first U.S. Open champion from Europe in 40 years, he paused.

"Probably not. You live and learn," he said. "I mean, I've tried to be a player who has no regrets about things, really. Perhaps I would have come into the 2011 season and tried to do a little less off the golf course and really tried to focus back in my golf game." (AP)

Back to Work: Fired Michigan coach Rich Rodriguez has landed a college football broadcasting job at CBS Sports Network. The cable channel said Tuesday that Rodriguez would be a game and studio analyst for the upcoming season. He will team with announcer Dave Ryan and be part of the network's weekly studio show. ## Progress Reported in NFL Talks

Both sides hopeful that lockout could end before July 4

Football

NFL and locked-out players have made enough progress in recent negotiations that a deal between the two sides is within reach during the next two or three weeks, people on both sides of the dispute said Tuesday.
Owners of the 32 teams, scheduled to attend a meeting in Chicago Tuesday, have been told to leave their schedules open in case the session runs late that night or spills over into the next day, said several people who spoke on the condition of anonymity because the deliberations are at a sensitive stage.

It is possible — but unlikely — that the owners could vote on a labor deal at that meeting, said several of the people, who did not participate in the talks but are familiar with developments. It is more likely, they said, that owners could give negotiators their opinions and a deal with the players could be completed the next week.

A deal that week, just before

July 4, appears increasingly realistic, said people on both sides of the dispute. Others cautioned that a deal remains less than a certainty
and talks still could unravel.

Talks between the league and the players are continuing. NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell and DeMaurice Smith, executive director of the dissolved players' union, participated in mediated negotiations
in each of the previous two weeks,
along with small groups of owners and players. The talks resumed Tuesday in Maryland, and a meeting was also scheduled for Wednesday. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Steve-O's memoir offers a glimpse into his struggles with
fame and addiction

Personalities

Hyperion Publishing wasn't crazy about Steven Glover's idea for the tagline of his memoir, "Professional Idiot" (Hyperion, $26).

Glover — better known as Steve-O from MTV's "Jackass" and "Wildboyz" — says he wanted to market the book as "a story of a young boy who hated school and then got paid for shoving stuff up his butt." While the publishers were a little more conservative with their title, Glover's book does detail his unorthodox resume. Among its highlights: He's swallowed live goldfish and puked them back up, leapt from inadvisable heights, and,
perhaps most famously, stapled a very sensitive jewel-holding portion of his anatomy to his leg.

Glover also reveals details
from his childhood, his crashing descent into years of drug addiction and alcoholism, and his eventual recovery three years ago, as well as his recent turn on "Dancing With the Stars."

How did writing a book compare with some of the scary stuff you did on "Jackass"?

It was terrifying. My story is so unflattering, and the reality of what a [jerk] I've been is an intimidating thing to share. But I'm glad I did it.

Steven Glover has made a living by doing everything your mom told you not to do.

"I think recovery for me has been a function of establishing an identity apart from Steve-O, between
finding a separation
between who I am
and what I do."

In the book, you wrote about how fame functions like a drug for you, and yet you're still living a very public life. Does that make your recovery even more difficult?

I think recovery for me has been a function of establishing an identity apart from Steve-O, between finding a separation between who I am and what I do. When I was really new in sobriety and had just left rehab, I was super-unsure about whether I could pursue this career.

Did you ever think about just going to work at Wal-Mart?

I came up with a plan to ditch it all and just join the Peace Corps.
But the process they have is totally designed to weed out people like me.

But around that same time, I got a call about doing "Dancing
With the Stars," and I felt like it would be a safe way to kind of get my feet wet. I was able to do all my rehearsal down the street from my halfway house, and I didn't have to travel at all. I felt it was a safe way to re-emerge into the spotlight. But, ultimately, it turned out to be stressful.

Why is that?

Doing something you're really bad
at in front of 20 million people isn't great for early sobriety. But to be as bad at dancing as I am and to last six weeks — to feel all that encouragement and all that love,
it meant a lot. But by the time I did get eliminated, I couldn't handle much more.

Do you consider your book an addiction memoir?

Well, it's not all about addiction. I think people want to know what we did film that wasn't on TV, and I'm more than happy to tell people that. I'm notoriously bad at keeping secrets.

get art, commerce or even his advisers: Jim Carrey wanted to work with the penguins.

The comic-actor returns to movie screens this weekend in family flick "Mr. Popper's Penguins."

"Yeah, when I was doing it, and when I chose it, there were people in my camp who were saying, 'You really want to do a penguin movie? You know, a PENN movie, children's movie of thing?'" Carrey recalled.

"Like, 'You want that rock 'n' edge in your life? And is that really to code?' But I just went on the instinct of, 'I love frickin' penguins.'"

At first glance, "Popper's" looks like a reworking of one of his big hits, "Liar Liar" (1997), another comedy about a wayward dad who finds his lost soul only after going through an extraordinary adventure. It also appears that another lifetime hot comic actor is trying to salvage his box-office cred by going the family film route. (Think Steve Martin's "Cheaper by the

But look again and see "Popper's" is none of the above, with fleshed-out, shades-of-gray characters (and no less than Angela Lansbury in the supporting cast), offering the sort of substance to keep adults and the kids engaged. And while the lead role wasn't tailor-made for Carrey (it's based on the Richard and Florence Atwater novel), there's just enough manic, fast-talking Carrey schtick worked into the movie to sate the star's longtime fans.

"So, this wasn't the approach of, 'I'm an alien in this movie and I'm different than everybody else,'" Carrey noted. "It was, 'I am everyman' in this movie, every person who is striving for some sort of personal greatness or trying to [run] away from their actual feelings. That was an important aspect of it. And then the bottom line: I love penguins; people love penguins."

At 49, Carrey shows no sign of slowing down. "You know, I've gone so far out this way and so far out this way that sometimes it's when I do a film like ['Popper's'], they kind of meet in the middle, and I get the best of both worlds."

A Second Chance For 'McCartney'

The former Beatle's overshadowed solo debut gets a do-over

Album Feature

It's hard to think of how Paul McCartney could have given his first solo album a bigger publicity hurdle to overcome, unless he'd been arrested for some vile crime on the week of its release in April 1970.

The newly ex-Beatle distributed a questionnaire that was treated true today as it was back then — had broken up. The music in "McCartney" was quickly overshadowed by anger and disappointment.

Forty-one years later, McCartney is asking for a second listen with a remastered disc that includes some alternative song versions, live cuts and film clips. "McCartney" is revealed for what it was: a warm, do-it-yourself project with one genuine classic ("Maybe I'm Amazed"), a couple of Beatles outtakes and a good dose of filled by fans and the media as definitive word that the world's most beloved rock band —

All Paul McCartney wants you to do is give "McCartney" a listen—again.

er from a newlywed who sounds ready to cut loose.

Approaching his 69th birthday this month, McCartney is a busy man. He's preparing for a concert tour that will take him to Yankee Stadium. He's preparing for his third marriage, to longtime girlfriend Nancy Shevell, although he's keeping the details of that private.

And it sounds like McCartney regrets that questionnaire. It's nowhere to be found in the re-released "McCartney" package.

"It's possible to read all sorts of other things into it," McCartney said. "For me, it was simply a way to answer some questions I might have been asked if I had done interviews." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

N.H. marks the 100th anniversary of when Robert Frost sold his inspirational farm

Excursions

From Highway 28, the New Hampshire farm once owned by poet Robert Frost may seem unchanged from a century ago. Yet the picturesque New England white barn and farmhouse recently underwent thousands of dollars in renovations including a new roof, foundation work and other upgrades.

And for the first time in decades, the Robert Frost Farm — which sits on 30 acres in Derry, N.H., about 10 miles north of the Massachusetts border — now closely resembles the place Frost left as he embarked on a life as a full-time poet, officials at the historic site say.

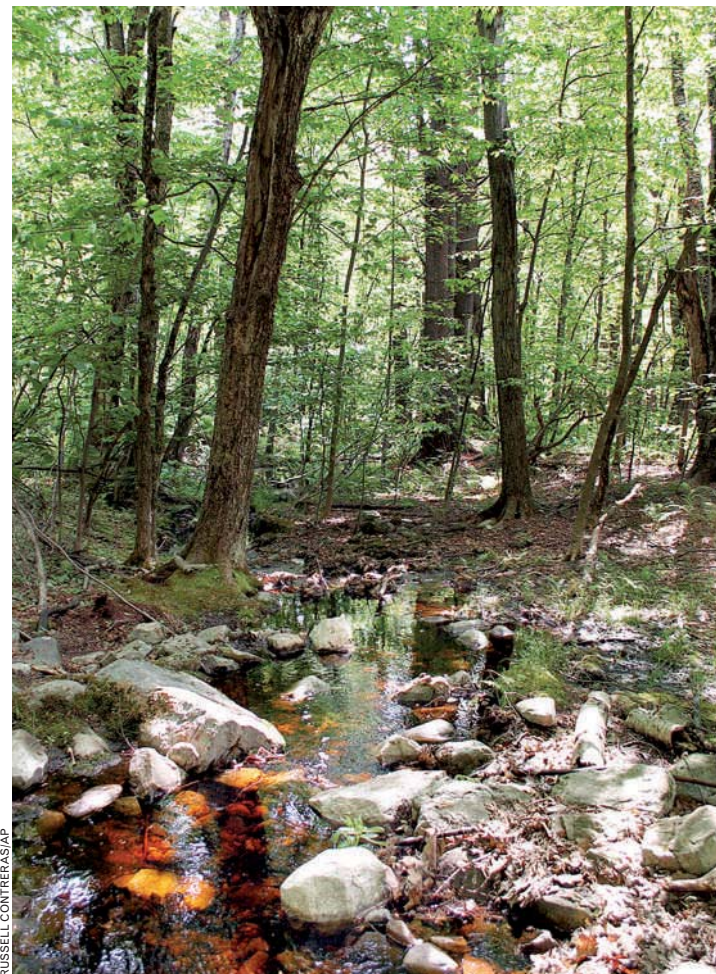

This year marks the 100th anniversary of when Frost sold the poultry farm for $1,100 to help pay for a three-year adventure in England where he would begin obtaining recognition in the world of letters.

After walking away from the farm, Frost won four Pulitzer Prizes for poetry, read at the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy and received a number of honorary degrees and awards.

But Frost scholars and enthusiasts say the poet never forgot those years in Derry. That's because the Derry years were some of the happiest of his life, and the farm and its New England grounds were the source of inspiration for some of his most famous poems.

“This is where he spent the most time with his family and had the happiest of memories,” said Justine Golden, a tour guide. “After he left here, it was never the same. His life was filled with tragedy.”

New Hampshire officials hope the restored house along with newly placed markers around the Hyla Brook Nature Poetry Trail, or

Some believe that this area of wooded stream at the idyllic Robert Frost Farm in Derry, N.H., inspired Frost to write his famous poem “Nothing Gold Can Stay.”

Robert Frost Farm

To re-create Robert Frost's happy life at the farm, the New Hampshire's Division of Parks and Recreation, which purchased the property shortly after Frost died, restored furniture and purchased period pieces around the home. the area that surrounds the farm, will give visitors a sense of how the environment played a role in some of Frost's more memorable works.

The New Hampshire Division of Parks and Recreation recently placed markers at the spots scholars believed inspired Frost to later write the poems “Nothing Gold Can Stay,” “Mending Wall” and “Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening,” among others.

“Derry was a place where he grew as a poet,” said Mark Schorr, executive director of the Robert Frost Foundation, based in nearby Lawrence, Mass. “The farm turned out to be exactly what Robert Frost needed. It gave him time to dream.”

Throughout the summer, the farm will host a number of poet readings and lectures on Frost. The farm closes for the season to visitors Oct. 11. RUSSELL CONTRERAS (AP)

BAKED CAKE DOUGHNUTS

Cake doughnuts are fried, not baked, at your local doughnut shop. But this recipe bakes up just as deliciously, and cleanup is far easier, not to mention a bit less guilt-inducing. This batter also bakes up beautifully in an electric doughnut maker. Prep time: 15 minutes. Ready in 30 minutes.

Ingredients

- ▶ 3/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- ▶ 1/4 cup whole-wheat pastry flour
- ▶ 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ▶ 1/3 cup superfine sugar
- ▶ 1/2 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
- ▶ 1/2 teaspoon salt
- ▶ 2 tablespoons (1 ounce) unsalted butter or vegetable shortening
- ▶ 1/4 cup whole milk, scalded
- ▶ 1/4 cup plain yogurt
- ▶ 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ▶ 1 egg, beaten

Makes 6 to 12 doughnuts

Preheat the oven to 350 F. Lightly grease a doughnut pan.

Sift flours and baking powder together into a large bowl or bowl of a mixer. Whisk in sugar, nutmeg and salt. Add butter and use your fingers to rub it into the dry ingredients as you would in a pastry crust, until evenly distributed. Add milk, yogurt, vanilla and egg; stir until just combined. Do not over-mix.

Use a spoon to fill each doughnut cup about three-quarters full, making sure center post is clear. Bake until doughnuts are a light golden brown and spring back when touched, six to 10 minutes. Let cool slightly before removing from pan. Glaze as desired.

Note: For the proper doughnut shape when baking cake doughnuts, you need a doughnut pan with a rounded bottom and a post through the middle. Baking them on a flat baking sheet will result in flat-bottomed half-doughnuts. If you don't have a doughnut pan, you can make the same batter and bake it in a muffin tin for doughnut-flavored muffins. DOUGHNUTS: SIMPLE AND DELICIOUS RECIPES TO MAKE AT HOME ($17, SASQUATCH)

"Bread doused in cinnamon and sugar is really good, but it didn't taste like doughnuts." They've vowed to deep-fry next.

"Fried doughnuts involve more technique," Haerle says. "You're using yeast dough, working with it, letting it rise. Then you get that light, crispy, warm deliciousness."

Still, frying won't result in burns or a house that smells like McDonald's. "When people think of frying, they think of spattering, but that only happens when water gets into the hot oil," says Lara Ferroni, author of "Doughnuts: Simple and Delicious Recipes to Make at Home" ($17, Sasquatch). "Monitor the oil temperature — don't let it smoke."

Another plus: A homemade doughnut is a blank canvas for your favorite flavors. "As long as you have a great textured doughnut that isn't greasy, the topping possibilities are endless," says Tiffany MacIsaac, pastry chef at Birch & Barley (1337 14th St. NW; 202-567-2576), which fries more than 300 doughnuts every Sunday at brunch. "I often glaze them in a mixture of powdered sugar and a fresh juice like lime or passion fruit."

No matter what tempts you, enjoying a doughnut now and then is perfectly OK. "It's a basic cravings that's part of human nature," Ferroni says. BETH LUBERECKI

Horoscope

MINI (May 21-June 20) You can't always get your way, but you're going to tread lightly when you are dealing with those who are used to getting their own way, too.

ICER (June 21-July 22) Study up, be sure you know what is expected of you, how to do it and when to say when. You can provide what is required and still maintain some control.

(July 23-Aug. 22) You're counting on someone to look the other way when you bend the rules just a bit, but you may be disappointed. You're going to have to face the music.

GO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A phase marked by increased selfishness is just beginning, but for you this can be a good thing; you've been thinking of others, not yourself, for quite a while.

RA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Manners matter. Be sure that you accept what is graciously and in the spirit in which it was intended. Avoid any kind of overly emotional response.

RPPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can enhance your own enjoyment of a routine event merely by getting yourself in the proper frame of mind beforehand. If you're ready, you'll have a lot of fun.

ITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) It's a good day to try some self-improvement, but you mustn't just put on a new personality as if you were donning an old costume. Do your homework.

RICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be feeling a little more sassy than usual. A friend will surely warn you when you have gone too far, so feel free to lose a little.

ARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You can make quite an impression, so long as what you are attempting is something that is in line with your abilities and desires. Don't stray too far.

ES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may be standing in a position that makes you much more vulnerable than usual. You may not know the truth from a lie—it is too late.

ES (March 21-April 19) You can reach even the most routine issue with more creativity, and the results are sure to impress others—and surprise as well. Experiment more freely.

RUS (April 20-May 20) You can't try to change too much about yourself; what the stars—and nature—have doled out should be plenty, and circumstances can prove it to you.

For revolutionary dental implant treatment, it's a ClearChoice!

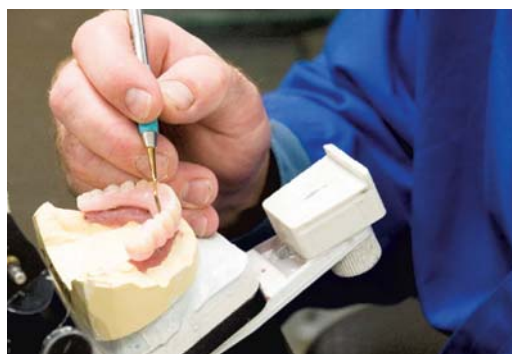

ClearChoice works around the country to bring you dental implants and a beautiful new smile ... in just one day!*

Virtually every adult will lose a tooth, and as we get older more and more active Americans will suffer with missing and failing teeth. These days, however, there are dental health options that either didn't exist in the past or which were difficult to access. But now, ClearChoice Dental Implant Centers are expanding all around the country and are industry leaders in innovative dental implant treatments. Dental Implants are a permanent solution for dental problems and now this treatment can often be accomplished in just one day*...and without the need for additional bone graft surgeries. In fact, dental implants can last a lifetime and have become the treatment of choice for replacement of missing and failing teeth. With more than 10,000 dental implant procedures, ClearChoice Dental Implant Centers have become a leader in dental implant treatment delivery.

*They said they had specialists, a lab, and high tech equipment all at one location, but I had no idea that they could really do all of this in just one day!**
— Actual ClearChoice patient

Every ClearChoice Dental Implant Center includes an on-site 3D CAT Scan machine. The 3D CAT technology costs hundreds of thousands of dollars, but provides a high level of detail. This technology provides three-dimensional and cross-sectional views that allow the Centers' surgical and restorative teams to examine the quality and density of the bone that will anchor the dental implant; determine the precise placement of implants; select the correct type and size of the implants, and, avoid the nerves and sinuses.

In-house Dental Implant Lab

Since every smile is custom designed, each ClearChoice Center has a specialized Dental Implant in-house lab to custom make your smile.

The technology alone cannot elevate ClearChoice Dental Implant Centers in their field. However, that technology is paired with an expert professional team of specialists enabling ClearChoice to empower so many patients around the country to change their lives. These qualified specialists include an oral surgeon who places implants and a prosthodontist who designs your custom new teeth. Each of the doctors has special expertise and can be trusted to deliver your high quality implant care. Dental Implants are a surgical procedure and ClearChoice doctors have extensive experience in dental implant surgical procedures, anesthesia to provide comfort, and custom fabrication of the patient's new smile. ClearChoice professionals are committed to making sure that all patients receive the best possible results in terms of care and comfort, dental health, and of course, aesthetics.

Whether for a missing single tooth, multiple teeth or a whole mouthful of missing or failing teeth, ClearChoice Dental Implant Centers provide more comprehensive implant treatment done professionally and affordably in a fraction of the time it would take many other professionals. That's why in an independent study of thousands of patients, ClearChoice patients would overwhelmingly recommend ClearChoice to others.†

Just a few years ago, ClearChoice Dental Implant Centers launched with one location and five employees. Today there are more than 30 ClearChoice Center locations nationwide, and they continue to expand their presence—one happy patient at a time. So if you ever have a problem when you are traveling or on vacation, you can always visit a ClearChoice Center near you.

So now you can stop suffering, and change your life in one day!*
